

Little Things Go a Long Way!

By Martin Bertuzzi, Hollywood CRA Code Enforcement Officer, Downtown District

Sometimes small improvements make as much of an impact as a huge project. Basic things like pressure cleaning or repainting your building, cutting grass and trimming hedges can dramatically improve the appearance of your property. These are relatively inexpensive projects that most can accomplish without major expense or discomfort.

In addition, assets such as parking lots and concrete curb stops should be resealed or repainted periodically. These are very small improvements; however, you would be amazed at how much they enhance the overall appearance of your property or business establishment.

If everyone took a more proactive approach with the little things, the entire community could look better. By the way, some of the recommended improvements would cure existing code violations prior to the need for formal enforcement action. Why not get ahead of the curve and improve things before being formally notified by the City?
